Waste-Ed Art 2019

School Competition

Glenorchy City Council's Waste Services department is running a competition for school students in the local community.

As a school or class group, your students are invited to create an artwork in response to the competition theme:

What happens to the food we don't eat?

All artworks entered will be displayed at the Moonah Arts Centre during July. A winning work will be selected by Alderman Kristie Johnston, Mayor of Glenorchy, and displayed on the side of Glenorchy City Council's litter truck!

Turn overleaf for instructions on how to register your group, and for important dates.

Guidelines

- Paper of a specific size will be provided, you must create your artwork on the paper provided
- this is a collaborative art-making activity, that means you are making your artwork as a group
- entries must be 2D, this may include: painting, drawing, collage, or a photograph of an assemblage (image made from found objects)
- your artwork must fill the whole space
- groups are encouraged, but not limited, to use recycled materials.
- See overleaf for important dates

We want your artwork here!
